June 5.—The democratic convention began to mature its plans this morning, although it will not announce the result until noon. The trickling stream which began to run into the hall as early as 8 o'clock has since swelled to a torrent which surges in and out of the hall to overflowing before noon 10,000 people have gazed upon the high-decked platform and the presiding officer. The hall is not yet empty, but with its thousands of fluttering fans it presents a picture of color, the effect of which is heightened by the presence of the ladies' delegation, full of curiosity and the expectant multitude, impatiently awaiting the opportunity of

THE BALL

to be filled with admiration. It is a picture to delight the eye, relieved on either side by the galleries reaching back 200 feet, and stretching entirely around the hall, as a broad, overhanging canopy, while ample stage reaches from the chairman's platform, 70 feet wide, to the wall of the hall and seats 340 of the gathered leaders of the national democracy. The galleries are simple but effective in their decoration, being hung with red, white and blue bunting, relieved by festoons and rosettes of the same. Upon a pedestal in front of the entrance of the stage stands a bust of the president, and suspended over the face of the gallery in front of the stage is a large portrait of the president. On either side are smaller portraits of Cleveland, Hancock, Hendricks and ex-Governor Marmaduke of Missouri. A very striking picture is produced in the gallery above the stage by an enormous shaded drawing of the capitol at Washington, with a background of sky. The delegates' seats are arranged across the nave of the hall, 90 feet in front of the platform. They are arranged with the state delegations in alphabetical order, beginning with Alabama at the right and end with Wisconsin at the left.

THE GALLERIES

are filled with ladies, who, coming in and passing down the aisles, present an immense basket of flowers at the right of the chair's platform, which is yet unoccupied, and the scene is one of the most picturesque ever witnessed. A noticeable feature is the outburst of applause as the hour for the opening of the convention approaches, a flutter of handkerchiefs and a waving of fans by ladies who fill the galleries, while a number of lodges arranged along the two galleries, which are filled up almost exclusively by ladies, add bright attire and pretty faces to the additional attraction to the assemblage.

with their banners came in late, but well known organizations in every city are greeted with cheers and the braves are among the first to be followed closely by the New York democracy and a local St. Louis organization. The Randall club, with its black and gold banners and Squire William McMullin, has its own national conventions, annually, and are generously applauded. The first of the great national democratic figures to appear on the platform, is the tall form of the veteran from Indiana, Daniel W. Voorhees. He is at once recognized and greeted with a storm of applause, which echo and re-echo. The Cleveland club of Buffalo, with full band playing "Dixie," marches into the gallery and creates

A FURORE OF A SENSATION.

The cheering and shouting, bursting into applause after applause, which continue until the club has taken its position in front of the gallery and in front of the platform, displaying a crimson banner, with a portrait of Cleveland in the center, and in gold letters inscribing, "Buffalo," name, became at once one of the most conspicuous and popular features of the hall. Every member of the club wears a high hat and Cleveland badge.

[illegible] Convention Stephen M. White of California, who is to be of the convention, now steps quietly into his place. Of all the persons in the hall [illegible] White is a man of strong personality, and of medium height, with a full broad forehead, long dark hair, combed back from the forehead, and a full brown beard. Arm in arm with Collector Hackett of the Cleveland club's parade, and with the Cleveland banner directly in front of the great picture of the president, the gallery is electrified by the cheers for the two men, with mass of the hall [illegible]

Chairman of the national committee [illegible] this moment upon the platform, and is instantly recognized by the general applause [illegible] Lamar are heard all over the hall. The Jefferson club of Indianapolis, with the volume of the cheers [illegible] up to the east gallery, with a banner by the side of the Cleveland banner. Chairman [illegible] looks up to see what is [illegible] him, and when he catches [illegible] upon the pole of the Indiana delegation, and friends of Governor Gray now join in the shouting. Chairman Barnum, who has advanced to the highest desk on the platform, waits for the cheers to subside. At 12:55 the vast assemblage was silenced by a stroke of the gavel from Chairman Barnum, and the democratic convention of 1888 was formally in session. The chairman introduced Bishop J. B. Granberry of St. Louis, who

OPENED THE PROCEEDINGS WITH PRAYER.

Bishop Granberry came forward and addressed the throne of grace as follows:

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, who art lifted far above all this turmoil, and yet dost stoop to us in answer to our prayer. We adore Thee, we praise Thee, we give Thee thanks for Thy great goodness to the sons of men. Thou art God, and we are the people of Thy providence and the work of Thy hand. We thank Thee for this great country which Thou hast given us, for the increase of our population and our wealth, and our power for the diffusion of knowledge, for Thy word which giveth [illegible] to the Church and for all Christian institutions. Forgive our ingratitude, our forgetfulness of Thee, our disobedience, according to the multitude of Thy favors in Christ. O Lord, save us from pestilence, famine and war, from sectional strife and anarchy and disorder, from the reign of vice and crime and impurity. May the foundations of our prosperity be laid in faith and reverence and righteousness and love, and may the favor of our God be our defense and our glory. We beseech Thee, Almighty God, that thou wilt bless the president of the United States and all that are in authority, and do Thou provide for us able men who fear God, men of truth and righteousness, and may our people be led on by this wisdom and by Thy power and goodness from height to height of material and intellectual and moral development. May these blessings be transmitted from generation to generation to all nations, that all the earth may see the glory of our God. These prayers we offer in the name of Thy Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.

The chairman then stated that acting under authority conferred upon him by the national democratic committee he would present to the convention the names of the persons selected by the committee to preside over and officer the temporary organization of the convention. As the secretary read the name of S. M. White of California as temporary chairman the convention greeted it with cheers, as it also greeted the name of F. O. Prince of Massachusetts as secretary. The reading of the list of officers having been concluded the choice of the committee was ratified by unanimous vote. The list was announced A. P. Gorman of Maryland, U. S. Bell of Ohio and E. F. Dawson of South Carolina as a committee to conduct White to the platform. Having taken the chair the new presiding officer was greeted with another round of applause and cheers. Governor White said:

GOV. WHITE'S SPEECH.

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION—Profoundly grateful for the distinction conferred on me I am nevertheless conscious that I have been chosen for this position because of your appreciation of that important cause of our common country from whence I come. I do assure you that those whom I in part represent will regard with satisfaction the recognition which they have just received, not because of any uncommon ability or influence of mine, but for the reason that this is the only occasion in the history of our national conventions on which the Pacific slope has been accorded such an honor. California was admitted under democratic rule. It became a common wealth under democratic auspices. It is therefore natural that on [illegible] its favor should emanate from an organization whose patriotism and courage gave [illegible] to the American union, and that her party should be the first to press forward with parental fondness the children of those who knocked at [illegible] not knock in vain for admission to the privileges of statehood.

I congratulate you not merely as democrats but as Americans on the [illegible] on which we are to [illegible] the [illegible] of our proceedings. For [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] covering more than [illegible] of [illegible] while the [illegible] fairs of the government are conducted by a democratic administration. Up to the late presidential election the Republican party declared that the financial success [illegible] and whatever might [illegible] of [illegible] and transactions of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Senator Plumb has attacked the administration of the Indian department in [illegible]. Since the lease of Plumb's cattle company in Indian territory was annulled, he has had a very poor idea of the administration of the Indian department in this [illegible].

The democrat convention, now being held, will throw no light on the political situation. Its action has been a foregone conclusion for months. It is only a ratification meeting. The two uncertain factors in the contest are, first, the republican candidate, and second, the action of the democratic majority in the house on the tariff bill. When there is positive knowledge on these two points, the situation will be cleared. We shall know whether the campaign is to be fought on clearly defined issues and what they are, or whether it is simply a question of the official integrity of the candidates. Until these uncertainties are cleared up speculation is useless.

The democrats have not held so enthusiastic a convention, since 1876 when Tilden was nominated. They feel sure of victory this fall. But they have not near as good grounds for their faith in victory as in 1884. In the first place the election of 1882 showed far more democratic sentiment in the country than that of 1886. In 1882 New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana and Massachusetts were all democratic. In 1886 Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Ohio, Indiana and Massachusetts of the above were republican. Again the republicans had a candidate not satisfactory either to the stalwarts or to the independent voter. This made a defensive campaign which is always a weak one. This year the republican candidate will command the full strength of the party. The democrats only elected Cleveland in 1884 by a mere scratch. The margin is too narrow considering the elections of 1886.

STATE NEWS.

DESCENT INTO ITALY.

A Drive Through the Val Tournenche to Aosta.

[Special Correspondence.]

ROME, May 19.—My young sister and I had been tramping in the Alps for several days, and one bright morning were all ready to descend the Val Tournenche. This is a wild and romantic valley extending from Duvill to Chatillon, a distance of about eighteen miles, during which it descends almost five thousand feet. Its sides are very mountainous, and we quickly lost sight of all the mountains except the Matterhorn, which the trend of the valley allowed us to see for nearly an hour. The first part of the walk was [illegible] and stony, but we soon came to cultivated fields and vineyards. We passed a number of little settlements, whose inhabitants were at work in the fields. They gazed at us as if we were wild animals; in fact, I believe that in every country the average peasant considers the man who walks for pleasure a lunatic.

A Roman aqueduct formerly ran down this valley, and the remains of its massive arches are visible in a number of places. As we descended the trees became larger and the foliage more luxuriant. At length we passed through a grove of magnificent chestnut trees, and as we emerged from it the beautiful plain of Lombardy lay stretched out before our eyes. Its bright warm green was a refreshing change after the cold gray rocks and dazzling snows among which the past week had been spent.

Below us lay the little village of Chatillon, at the end of the valley. We arrived there after a walk of five hours from Breuil, which, as it had been a steady down hill, was rather hard upon the knees. I ordered a carriage to take us to Aosta, a city fifteen miles from Chatillon, which was founded by Augustus, and derives its name from him.

The ride to Aosta was along an excellent road, as all Italian roads are, beautifully shaded with chestnut trees. We reached the town in about two hours, and spent the afternoon examining the remains of the structures built by the great emperor. The most important of these is a triumphal arch in a good state of preservation, which much resembles the one in the forum at Rome, and the ruins of a large basilica. The city is surrounded by a wall flanked with towers, and there is a large double gateway, which also dates from the time of Augustus.

Beyond its antiquities the city possesses but little of interest, as its houses are old and dingy, its streets dirty, and the inhabitants of an unattractive appearance. It is beautifully situated in an amphitheatre of hills, which are covered with vines. The wines of this district is justly celebrated. Although thoroughly Italian in their character and habits, the people speak a sort of French patois.

E. W. LE PRINCE.

[illegible] Elected

[illegible] of the Supreme Court which are nearly all in favor of the republican candidates David J. Baker, Jacob W. Wilkin, Jos. M. Bailey and Benj. D. Magruder, were elected in the First, Third, Sixth and Seventh districts and John M. Schofield democrat the present incumbent, in the Second district. This makes the [illegible] Illinois republican for the first time in its history.

"BUFFALO BILL."

AN APPRECIATIVE LETTER CONCERNING WILLIAM F. CODY.

How He Was First Brought into Prominence by the Exertions of Professor Ward, of Rochester [illegible] on the Plains and as a Theatrical Man.

[Special Correspondence.]

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 21.—Sixteen years ago last January "Buffalo Bill" was a scout of the western plains. He was about 30 years old and had never been east of the Mississippi river. He was a poor man, who seemed to have found his place in the world as a hunter, a "crack shot" and a desirable escort for parties who would see life on the border of civilization, or rather beyond it. Gen. Sheridan in those days had no lack of applications from foreign tourists for some one, the proper person, to conduct them safely through a buffalo hunt and a campaign among the redskins. Happy were they if Buffalo Bill assumed the responsibility, and perhaps nothing surprised them more in their strange experience than to find so true a gentleman, a man so honest, trusty and [illegible] as he proved to be. The opposite had hardly been out of the order of things. Brave, ready, keen, the perfect confidence he inspired and never betrayed was not less than the admiration he was sure to excite—that personal fascination which made the correspondents of the London press write of the man as "sitting his prancing white horse like a centaur," possessing "the courtly manner of a grandee of old Castile" and as "fulfilling every requirement for a hero of romance." The fact that he is a genuine gentleman by nature and was such when he supported his little family at Fort McPherson by his meager earnings, and was a good husband and father when the contrary would hardly have been unobserved, largely explained his wonderful success.

Professor Henry A. Ward, of Rochester, N. Y., the famous natural scientist, had as much to do with the development of that success as any one. Perhaps he gave the impetus to the evolution.

It was in January of 1872 that a grand buffalo hunt was arranged for the Duke Alexis. Professor Ward was honored with an invitation, which he received so late he did not reach the hunting grounds until the hunt was over. Not a bad thing for him, however, for he found horses and hunters in plenty for the scientific ends he had in view, and then he met Buffalo Bill for the first time, and the rifle of the expert hunter was at once engaged for an expedition in the interests of Ward's Natural Science establishment.

Professor Ward's estimate of William F. Cody has known no decrease from that time to this. It is the old story of enthusiastic admiration for Buffalo Bill. Cody told him of his invitation to visit New York by the Union club and their [illegible], and his reluctance to accept. Ward urged him to go—insisted upon it. Cody should go east in his company, which changed the view of the journey. Finally Cody decided to go, but Ward must wait until Mrs. Cody could make a suit of clothing for the traveler. Mrs. Cody did her best and as speedily as possible, and, so arrayed, the hunter turned his face eastward, little thinking he would return as a scout of the plains no more. He was surprised at the attentions he received on his journey and in New York. Everybody, of course, plied him with questions about Indians and buffaloes, etc., and so piquantly did he respond that Professor Ward suggested that he should go before the public in New York, not with a formal lecture, but to explain and illustrate life on the plains. The character of the man was seen in his declining to do such a thing, for the very [illegible] that he feared it would be questionable for him to [illegible] the [illegible] for his own pecuniary profit. He was the guest of Professor Ward on his return from the east, and while at Ward's house Ned Buntline came along with his play of "Western Life," in which Cody took a part in it with Texas Jack. That was the beginning of his life as an actor. He brought his family at once to Rochester, and soon after bought a home for them here. The death of his little boy, Kit Carson, was [illegible] noted by the community generally than it would be today, for "Buffalo Bill" then passed through our streets like a stranger, unless discovered and heralded by the small boy. Even now that he is famed, and one of the most successful men of the time, a great majority of the Rochesterians are surprised to learn that his name may be found in the directories of 1872 and 1873, if not later—"William F. Cody, actor."

He called with him when he went to England on the visit which [illegible] concluded so successfully several large stuffed buffaloes, which were prepared at Ward's Natural Science establishment. Possibly it would add something to the buffaloes in the collections of many foreign as well as home museums if it were known that they were brought down by the rifle of Buffalo Bill.

There is but one opinion concerning the man by those who know him best. The flower of England's chivalry do well to admire him; he is chivalry itself; genuine, loyal.

His success in London was the evolution of his success on the plains. There was nothing phenomenal about it. He has earned it by good, hard, honest work when work gave him scanty comforts and few, if any, luxuries. When he arrived in London with his Wild West show he must have had some 200 influential friends there, Englishmen of wealth and position many of them, who remembered their faithful guide and hunter on the plains. They believed in him, and so could believe in his Wild West show, and were enthusiastic in giving it what we call "a good send off." It was hard for the English public to believe that it was a private enterprise and not a national undertaking. When had England ever seen an "exhibition" ready for opening on the day specified, complete in every essential detail? And when had it witnessed anything like the transplanting of genuine Indians, cowboys, Mexican vaqueros, frontier girls and "buck jumpers" right into London itself? The fact that the genuine Arapahoes wore "tights" was not concealed. The absence of pretention—the key note of Cody's character—was the characteristic of his show in England.

The man's executive ability is wonderful. Executive ability is one of his peculiar gifts, and he had a school for its training in Nebraska. It must be remembered how much he was associated with army men of a superior grade and the advantages of his companionship with cultivated travelers. That association was an important offset to comradeship with cowboys and his intimate acquaintance with roughs and redskins.

From London Cody intended going around the world with his Wild West show and Jerusalem was on the list of cities where Indians, buck jumpers and cowboys were to give performances, showing how the Pony Express carried the news of Abraham Lincoln's election, and how the Deadwood coach was often surrounded by redskins, and what the [illegible] of frontier settlers was like. What a spectacle all that would have been for the [illegible], as [illegible] typical American, a genuine son of the west, would [illegible] the [illegible].

Col. Cody is 46 years old. Sixteen years ago his wife was bravely doing her best here in Rochester for [illegible] and make thrifty expenditure of his earnings. She remains on [illegible] in New York most of the time, [illegible] there. He does not [illegible] to [illegible] in the shoots that [illegible] once into the ring, nor does he wear his heart upon his sleeve.

W. W. SMITH, Signal Service.

The police report a large number of tramps in town.

The police magistrate fined two men for vagrancy yesterday.

The Yosemite and Yellowstone Park at the opera house this evening.

The Palmer Lake Land company have filed plats of Palmer Lake, South Palmer Lake, and East Palmer Lake with the county clerk.

Mr. C. H. Fewsmith, principal of the Manitou schools, was a graduate at the recent commencement of Big Grande college, Ohio.

Rooms 1 and 2, will be placed on sale at No. 112 Pike's Peak avenue for the opera "Pinafore," which will be given on Friday night.

Mr. John Tomay, a prominent citizen of Georgetown and an influential member of the Catholic Knights of America was in the city yesterday.

There are undelivered telegrams at the Western Union telegraph office for Gov. Alberson, P. A. Embery, Henry G. Berry and Geo. A. Dubrow.

There will be a regular meeting of Myrtle lodge No. 35, K. of P., to-night. Work in first and second ranks. Visiting Knights cordially invited.

Mr. D. W. Robbins has kindly donated ten per cent of the gross receipts of his business during the present week to the debt fund of the First Methodist church.

The Colorado Springs base ball club will meet the Racquets of Denver next Saturday afternoon. The Racquets are among the strongest amateur clubs in Denver.

Drs. Sinton and Chamberlain are in attendance upon the meeting of the State Dental association at Denver. Dr. Sinton will read a paper on bridge work or artificial teeth without plates.

Several changes have been made in the positions of the players of the Colorado Springs Base Ball club. Lynch will hereafter cover short, DeWitt will be on second and Smith on third.

Mr. F. S. Leonard, the Pike's Peak avenue clothier, announces some exceedingly low bargains in clothing and gentlemen's furnishings this morning. Read his advertisement on the first page.

Divine services will be held in the German language to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Christian church on East Huerfano street. Rev. H. Rauh, pastor of the German Lutheran church at Denver.

The El Paso Electric company have stretched an Iron Wire to Colorado City to keep the current of electricity from interfering with the operation of the wires of the Telephone company at night.

The lecture by Mr. Ragan at the opera house this evening, on the Yosemite and Yellowstone park, will be an interesting description of those famous localities. It will be illustrated with magnificent views.

The local base ball club will play with the Trinidad club on the 20th and 21st insts. The Trinidad club is among the strongest in the southern part of the state, and has only suffered one defeat during this season.

Quite a number of the articles stolen from Mr. Collier's residence on North Weber street last March, were found among the effects of Lizzie Pye, at Denver last week. There are some of the goods which have not yet been found.

Mr. H. G. Thornton has purchased a car of furniture and a large line of crockery from Perkins Bros. for furnishing his new sixteen room cottage at Manitou Park. He has rented nearly all the rooms in the cottage for the season.

The ladies of the Congregational church will hold an apron sale, beginning at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon, at the church. A large variety of aprons will be offered for sale, and orders taken for others. Tea, coffee, ice cream and cake will be furnished both in the afternoon and evening.

Yesterday morning the city marshal of Colorado City arrested two men on suspicion of having been concerned in the recent attempt to burglarize the iron springs pavilion at Manitou. Mr. Eben Eaton, who shot one of the three burglars, went to Colorado City yesterday afternoon to see if he could identify the men, but he was unable to, do so, and they were accordingly discharged.

One of our leading citizens suggests that it is time something was done in the way of holding a county fair in this city next fall. El Paso county has probably as fine stock as any county in the state, and a very creditable exhibit could be made. It was also suggested that a very interesting programme of races could be arranged. The same gentleman intimated that some steps might be taken in this matter quite soon.

J. B. MacDonald & Co., the contractors who are doing the work on the big cut on the Rock Island north of the city, are now working a force of 75 men. Dirt is being handled at a rapid rate. A track has been laid from Cascade avenue to a point west of the Monument and the dirt is hauled from the cut in cars and dumped on the depot grounds west of the creek. The trestle bridge over the creek, which the railroad will use temporarily, is now being built.

Mr. David McClure has completed his contract for grading and rolling the county road west of Colorado City. The road, after leaving Colorado City, is now in better condition than it has been for years. All the bad places have been repaired, and the driveway has been considerably widened. Mr. McClure will make an effort to induce the commissioners to repair the road between the city limits and Colorado City. He is confident that with a little work the road can be put in first-class shape.

Mr. C. F. Jenkins, who has resided in this city for several weeks, was arrested on Monday afternoon by City Marshal Dawson on information furnished by the officials of South county, Kansas. It is alleged that Jenkins was indicted by the grand jury of South county for assault, with intent to kill, and that he "jumped" his bail. Jenkins is confident that he can establish his innocence. He made no effort to conceal his identity while in this city. Jenkins was taken back to Kansas yesterday afternoon by T. M. Carson, the under-sheriff of Smith county.

REAL ESTATE, LOANS AND INSURANCE!

Special Attention Given to the Collection of Rents, Interest and Accounts of Persons out of Town.

Insurance Carefully Written in First-Class Companies Only.

Losses Promptly and Satisfactorily Adjusted.

STRANGERS, and others not posted in our Real Estate Market, often ask the question, "Where can I best invest my money to be sure of Quick and Profitable returns?"

1st. I would say, select a locality where you have the most SUNSHINE, [illegible] AND MOUNTAIN SCENERY, etc.

2nd. See that you locate where you can enjoy the best WATER ADVANTAGES. Pure water without water in this country is a desert, and when I say BEST WATER ADVANTAGES I mean not only for irrigating purposes which is very important, but also for [illegible] supply at present is limited and unless greatly increased in the future [illegible] every drop will be needed inside present city limits.

3rd. Do not locate where lots are too low in price—Low priced LOTS [illegible] surrounded by shanties will never sell for half its value. Better to [illegible] that will increase in value.

4th. Don't wait until the "Rock Island" comes in and then pay [illegible] all the choice advantages.

5th. "Lastly," call and see us and we will convince you that [illegible] HEIGHTS possesses all the above advantages.
